

I found that describing the characters was very funny and interesting

I learnt that I fit into Orange more than I thought I would

I learnt that people colours can be seen through a real-life situation
I really enjoyed the Picture Cards because it told me who I really want to be

I enjoyed seeing the multiple scenarios and which colour they relate to

That Greens can be looked at as arrogant, which may not necessarily be the case.

I enjoyed finding clarity about myself and finding out that I don't have to be a specific type of personality

I thought I was Green but now I think I am least like Green - it's nice to know I can be more than one colour type.

You can be more than one colour

I am more than one colour.

I found more words to describe myself - I really enjoyed this activity

I enjoyed not sitting at a desk and engaging in the activity
I enjoyed working in the group at the table with everyone else who is a Blue because everyone shared the same ideas

I learnt that I don't just fit into one personality style.

I enjoyed watching the play and how easy it was to identify the personality type.

I noticed that no one went to just one personality colour - which means we are a blend

It was interesting to see what other people think they are.

Values and morals that seem quite different can be connected - that was interesting

I liked the booklet and how it explains each colour in detail

I realised, as much as I hate studying, I really enjoy researching and learning new things. I never thought I would be an Enquiring Green but am glad that I am

I learnt about my core values and how I would react in certain situations

Feedback Time!

Year 10 St James' Anglican College Feedback: Personality Dimensions @ School

I really enjoyed this session - I am an Authentic Blue

I learned that I am an Inquiring Green person. I enjoy learning about new things.

I learnt that I fit into multiple groups but mainly Green.

I noticed that I fit into more than one type

I loved the scenarios because it made me think the choices I would make.

I liked getting up and moving around and making decisions instead of sitting at a desk

Values can be affected by friends and surroundings

Learning about the colours and realising no one person will have all attributes found in only one of the colours

Orange was my common colour.

It was interesting to see what other people think they are

I enjoyed discovering further into my personality type

I enjoyed the scenario - I learnt that the choices I would make describe my personality

I liked the end result of my values

I discovered what my values are

I learnt about different personality types and really enjoyed the life values activity

It was good to find people that were more relatable

I liked listening to and choosing which scenario I could relate to the most

I learnt that our values make up the way we act. I enjoyed seeing how I was on the fence on different situations and didn't really fit into just one colour

I learnt that I need to have my own opinions and not follow my friends.

It's interesting how people can be two opposite personalities depending on the scenario.

I enjoyed the posters and talking about values and strengths

I enjoyed not sitting at a desk all day

I learnt that I am a Resourceful Orange on the personality grid.

The different types of people we will come across in life.

The different types of personalities and their values, strengths and weaknesses.

There are a lot of different ways you can describe someone

Your personality affects your actions!

I learnt that I act as a Blue and Orange in different situations.

The thing I loved most was how the Teachers performed in the Party scenario.

I learnt that personality can be perceived differently from how the person thinks they come across.

Getting to know myself better

That I can be more than one colour, which is a good thing

I learnt from the characters that I am more Orange than Blue
